Homes plan worries locals

BY DANIEL LANGHORNE
ORANGE COUNTY REGISTER

Those who fled 2008 fire say adding residents would make future evacuations more difficult.

Marlene Nelson of Yorba Linda inspects a trail near Blue Mud Canyon in Yorba Linda, which is part of a planned home development. Nelson opposes the new homes, in part because of the potential fire hazard.

BY DANIEL LANGHORNE
ORANGE COUNTY REGISTER

New library location narrowed to two spots

BY DANIEL LANGHORNE
ORANGE COUNTY REGISTER

Construction of the new library is expected to cost $29 million. The old library site will be sold to help pay for the new one.

Sheriff’s Department urges vigilance against burglaries

BY DANIEL LANGHORNE
ORANGE COUNTY REGISTER

The Orange County Sheriff’s Department is urging Yorba Linda residents to remain vigilant after a home burglarized on Jan. 29.

I want the word to get out that this is not the place you want to go, because there are deputies all over.

LYNN, CRIMES
OF POLICE SERVICES
FOR YORBA LINDA
place, and the Orange County Fire Authority would have to sign off on the emergency account before any construction starts. (Several months ago, Yorba Linda City Council authorized the city to purchase land that's now part of Rancho Featherly Regional Park, which is adjacent to the region cleared land that's within 1/2 mile of the Whittier Fault, 40 miles away from the fire breaks of the Esperanza Hills project and gives it steep influence, largely because of the undeveloped parcel that would hold Cielo Vista, oil wells, and the view of the hills and his ability to hike just by walking the fringes of the develop- ment, announced at a meeting held by the county that the city would be recognized as a "responsible agency" under the California Environmental Control Act, as it has some discretionary power to approve or deny those projects. The city still does not have the authority to vote up or down on the project, but the county's planning process is still with the county's Planning Commission and the county's Board of Supervisors.

The Register, Feb. 6, 2013

A look at Esperanza Hills

YORBA LINDA, CA - OCT 03, 2008 - Community_Broadsheet

The first thing you notice when you walk up at Esperanza Hills is the view. The property is the site of the small kids area, sight instead of Yorba Linda's has

A plan to build such a large

The two projects are Cielo Vista and Esperanza Hills, with 112 homes, and Esperanza Hills with 340 homes, on unincorpolaunched, even through the north-

Debbie Kroner, a spokes-

The county's Plan-

so it has some dis-

Nothing will," he said. "It will be

Kane doesn't support the con-

The Register, Feb. 8, 2013

Homes

Yorba Linda Rd. Hidden Hills Rd.

Featherly

Regional Park

Stonehaven Dr.

La Palma Ave.